

Abstract of the Invention

Network interface systems are disclosed comprising a bus interface system, a media access control system, a memory system, a security system for selectively 5 encrypting outgoing data and decrypting incoming data, where the network interface system may be fabricated as a single integrated circuit chip. Systems and methods are disclosed wherein out-of-order writing is used to improve throughput for the security system on the receive end.